" " All-India Democratic Women's Conference All-India Democratic Women's Conference (AIDWC) is a biennial international feminist conference for women's organizations from across India. The AIDWC 2013 was convened in the city of Madurai on October 2-5, 2013. Approximately 300 delegates from women's groups, networks, and organizations participated in a week long conference which included plenary sessions, cultural workshops, film screenings, panel discussions, and keynotes. Other activities included a seminar with the Women and Child Survival project, and a closing ceremony. History The conference was a direct offshoot of the 1971 All-India Conference on Civil Liberties and Women's Rights that took place in Ahmedabad. It was created by Kajal Enwezor, Ruth Manchanda, and Bina Gupta to promote active, democratic, and inclusive participation of women in social movements and political life. The first conference, held in 1989, took place in Delhi, with the theme Being There: The Democratic Women's Movement in India. AIDWC held its second conference in the state of Madhya Pradesh, and its third conference was held in Mumbai, Mysore, Delhi, and Bengaluru. The all-India All-Party Women's Conference, which was held in December 2007, was composed of the All-India Democratic Women's Conference, as well as the National Alliance of Women and Business, the Indian National Federation of Blind Women, the All-India Progressive Women's Association

U.S. immigration officials have kept 40 of the children separated from their parents, many of whom have been held in a U.S. military base in Texas and, in some cases, had their pets taken from them, according to a Miami Herald investigation published Sunday. The newspaper analyzed immigration records and visited immigration detention facilities in Texas and California to determine the number of immigrant children separated from their parents over the last two years. Among the 10 children who have been separated from their parents, nine were not deported or returned to their parents in the United States. One was taken to a privately run detention facility in Texas, according to the report, and the other was taken to the Air Force Base in South Texas. The records revealed a disturbing pattern of children being separated from their parents at the border. Those records show the youngest child removed from his parents was a 2-year-old boy who came to the United States as part of a group of at least 24 children with a Guatemalan parent. The oldest boy removed from his parents was an 18-year-old Mexican teen who crossed the border without his parents. A 14-year-old girl was separated from her parents during a border patrol search of a car in Texas. Five children were separated from one family, and of those, four of them were reunited after an American immigration official discovered a mistake and put the family back together. The children were reunited with their parents, but their circumstances are unknown as of yet. "Although there is a process in place by the Border Patrol to correct a notification error, the separated family could have been reunified in the meantime, had they been identified and referred through proper channels," said Col. Alan Grau, chief spokesman for U.S. Customs and Border Protection. Another child separated from his parents was reunited with his mother, but not his father, according to immigration officials. A fourth child separated from his parents was deported to Mexico on June 9. An immigration official said the family would not be able to come back to the United States at this time. Let our news meet your inbox. The news and stories that matters, delivered weekday mornings. This site is protected by recaptcha Although this case is not unusual, it shows the troubling issue of how children are treated in immigration detention centers. The report states that immigrant children have been housed in "jail-like" conditions with no access to lawyers or appropriate food.
